being eaten up by rent increases?*

YES ON 10

Proposition 10, the Affordable Housing Act is a ballot measure that will restore the right of local communities to set fair limits on rent increases.

This is an urgent issue for working people in California, as workers' wages are increasingly eaten up by skyrocketing rents in most major cities.

Rent control is an affordable-housing measure that is free to governments and doesn't require tax dollars, and studies show that rent control keeps neighborhoods stable and affordable, benefiting working people.

Proposition 10 repeals the Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act, a law passed in 1995 by Republican legislators and the landlord lobby which prevents local communities from addressing the housing affordability crisis.
